

Leave some for fun!

By asking yourself if you really need some of these things, you can cut down on your expenditure, and work out a budget to enable you to live within your means, and even have some money left over that you can save. It needn't mean that you have to give up the things you enjoy. You can include some "fun money" in your budget to pay for treats such as nights out, club memberships, or vacations. If you make a wish list of things you want, rather than being tempted to buy them right away, you can get them when you can afford them—or maybe decide in the end that you don't really need them!

NO PLACE LIKE HOME

Probably the biggest regular expense for most people is paying for somewhere to live. Choosing whether to share with friends, rent a place of your own, or take out a mortgage to buy an apartment or house depends on your income. The amount you pay each month in rent or a mortgage will greatly affect the rest of your budget.

Try not to spend more than 90% of your income. Aim to set aside at least 10% for any big expenses that come along.

See also: Big SPENDERS | Finding a BALANCE | Do you REALLY need that? | Making PLANS