

balancing supply—what the sellers have to offer—with demand—what the buyers are looking for.

ALL COMMODITIES,
AS VALUES, ARE REALIZED
HUMAN LABOR.

KARL MARX

STOCK MARKETS

The stock market is where people buy shares, or stock, in companies. There are stock exchange buildings in cities like New York, London, and Tokyo. There is also a virtual market for electronic transactions, the NASDAQ (National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotations).

In ancient Greece, the marketplace, or agora, was also the social and political center of the city.

See also: GOODS and services