

Meeting demand

A producer will offer goods for sale where people need or want them. If there are no customers for the goods the producer will stop making them.