

The second type of endowment policy rule bases spending on a percentage of the moving average of the remaining account balance. The most common smoothing rules for endowment spending are moving average rules. Rather than define the spending rate only in terms of the initial year of the plan, the spending rate is a constant value over time. But rather than spending a