

Goal Setting

In determining your Retirement Income Optimization Map™, we need to start with your goals. Your goals will determine your Retirement Income preferences and help us prioritize your next steps.

Types of Goals: Longevity, Lifestyle, Liquidity, and Legacy

Longevity Goals
Longevity goals are goals that center on living longer.

Please read the selected goals below:

- ☐ Financial Independence. Knowing that I can live on my own money.
- ☐ Housing. Choosing my own living situation.
- ☐ HealthCare. Being able to pay for my medical care.
- ☐ Other.
- ☐ None.

Lifestyle Goals
Lifestyle goals require maximizing specific lifestyle goals. In other words, making choices for important life events and milestones.

Please read the selected goals below:

- ☐ Travel & Leisure. Taking trips and doing fun activities.
- ☐ Self-improvement. Investing in personal growth.
- ☐ Social Engagement. Enjoying the company of others.

Pensions
Pensions involve more traditional defined benefit plans usually offered by government institutions and large corporations. This is separate from Social Security income.

Please include any disability payment.

These questions apply to both the individual and partner.

During retirement, I (and/or partner) will:

- ☐ Yes
- ☐ No

Income Annuities

Stock Market Assumptions
The portfolio applies to both individual and partner.

One can consistently predict the stock market's future performance.

For patient investors, the market provides identifiable opportunities to buy stock significantly less than their intrinsic value.

The best investment strategy is market returns without forecasting and/or indexing.

I prefer to keep significant portions of my investable assets in cash or savings (e.g., CDs or Money Market Funds).

I am confident that stocks tend to outperform bonds during longer-term investment horizons in the public stock market, riskier at higher expected return than safer investments.

Insurance
These questions apply to both the individual and partner.

I have an appropriate level of:

After you complete the RIO Questionnaire, we will use your answers to achieve the following:

1. Determine and prioritize your financial goals in retirement between longevity, lifestyle, liquidity, and legacy. Your goal prioritization will help you know whether you identify more with probability-based or safety-first retirement approaches as outlined in chapter 1.
2. Investigate the relevance, the use, and your knowledge about a variety of tactics and tools related to reliable income, the diversified portfolio, reserves, and retirement income funding.
3. Identify your exposure to various retirement risks. These risks are categorized as personal risks, external risks, and capital market risks.
4. Outline the strengths and weaknesses within your current approach.
