understanding the intrinsic and market value of things is an expensive error to keep making.

Wayne is 90 years old as of this writing and occupies himself "a couple of days a week to try his luck on the video poker machine."[240] He was once sitting on the biggest lottery ticket in corporate history. Some people never see what is right in front of their own eyes.

We've spent a couple of chapters looking at bad trades. But what can we learn when a single trade goes bad? As it turns out, a whole lot…

236 Bruce Newman, "Apple's lost founder: Jobs, Woz and Wayne," Mercury News (June 2, 2010).

237 Steve Wozniak with Gina Smith, iWoz: Computer Geek to Cult Icon: How I Invented the Personal Computer, Co-Founded Apple, and Had Fun Doing It (W.W. Norton & Company, September 17, 2006).

238 Wired Editorial staff, "101 Ways to Save Apple," Wired (June 1, 1997).

239 Katya Kazakina, "Founding Apple Contract Jobs Signed Sells for $1.6 Million," Bloomberg (December 13, 2011).

240 Dan Simon, "The gambling man who co-founded Apple and left for $800," CNN (June 24, 2010).