

2. The monthly payment amount does not say anything about the total cost of the car.
3. Cars depreciate very quickly, especially new cars. When you buy a used car, you get it on sale because the depreciation has already lowered the price for you.
4. You still have substantial debt, you don't have enough for at least a 10-20% down payment, your monthly house payment will be over 25% of your take-home pay, you do not already have an emergency fund, or you think you will be in the house for less than five years.
5. Renting can be a better option if your rent is low. With a low rent, you can save more money for a down payment, which would help lower your monthly payments on the mortgage and possibly get you a better interest rate.
6. $2,725. Of course, this number is just an estimate, but it should give you an idea of how to project what your monthly mortgage payment would be. In reality, the number would vary depending on interest rate, property taxes, insurance, and so forth.
