

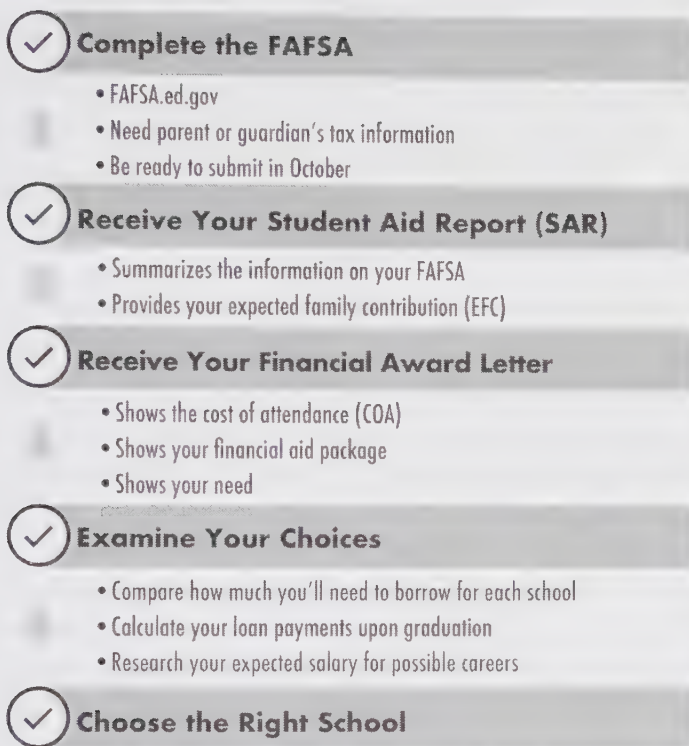

Figure 3.2. The financial aid application process

Of course, each school's COA is going to be different. For instance, for the 2020-2021 school year, New York University's cost of attendance is $78,744, while Oregon State University's is $27,915. If you are curious about a school's cost, visit their website, because every post-secondary school (college) that receives federal funds is required to post its COA. When you have submitted your FAFSA, each school that has accepted you is going to take the total COA and subtract your EFC to determine your need. Your need is how much money you will require (be given or