Enviably red-carpet shoes are stocked at Maryon's main boutiques – perhaps a dainty Dolce & Gabbana stiletto, or a playful Aquazzura pump. But for those with an el cheapo rather than Cannes-level budget, Maryon's is the clearance shop. It's not a glamorous experience, but when you can acquire designer solemates at a cut price, who cares?

Their promise is that items are sourced from Hollywood celebrities, stylists, movie wardrobes, high society, models and collectors, and that sets high expectations. Everything is authenticity-checked, and a two-month lay-by is available, including over the phone. Consignment items are accepted and, if they're priced under $2000, the seller receives half the sale price, increasing for more expensive pieces.
