

moisturiser, eye make-up remover, cuticle oil, hair treatment, lip salve, cheek highlighter, shaving cream and itch reliever. 'It's antimicrobial and antibacterial, so it has awesome uses.'

- Micellar cleansing water

This gently lifts dirt and dissolves make-up without irritating sensitive skin, Marshall says. Depending on your budget, any of these options work: Bioderma ($20 for 250 ml), Simple ($10 for 200 ml) or Garnier ($14 for 400 ml) all work beautifully.

- Dry shampoo

'Spray and go, bringing oily unwashed hair back to life, as well as providing oomph and grip when using hot styling tools,' Marshall says. Cedal dry shampoo is $4 a can, while the Klorane version is $16.

- L.A. Girl PRO Concealer

'It's an amazing product and impresses with its performance, and doesn't hurt your wallet.' Find it online for $11.

- L'Oréal Voluminous Mascara

An original mascara by the make-up giant that can be difficult to find in stores, but you can find it online for under $20. 'This is my favourite mascara, hands down. Priced well for such an excellent-performing product. Its buildable formula lasts and looks great all day.'

- e.l.f. High Definition Powder

'As far as a finishing powder goes, this is super inexpensive and works like other high-definition powders, giving the same results at a fraction of the cost.' Kmart stocks e.l.f., and has this powder for $13.

- An all-in-one make-up palette

'Travel-friendly, purse-friendly and an essential multitasker. Every beauty company does a palette at different times of the year. On-the-go beauty that saves money and space.'

- Bespoke perfume oils

'I love fragrance oils for so many reasons. They are unique and natural, and they last so much longer than a spray of perfume on your skin. You can buy fragrance kits so no one can replicate your scent, or you can customise your own signature scents at a bespoke or custom oils perfumery for under $30.'
