

Home loan application checklist

This checklist outlines the foundational documents you'll be asked to produce when you apply for a mortgage. Ensure you have original copies.

If you're unclear about this, ask your bank for their individual checklist – they usually have them ready to go, though not all are supremely detailed and some could be better. (Honestly, I've seen online dating profiles that are more dense and informative.) Give yourself enough time to gather what's needed, and to ask questions.

If you satisfy these steps, your application should meet conditional approval. There are more stages to come, but this is the first hurdle.

Proof of identity

- ☐ With your name, address and date of birth

For example: driver's licence, Medicare card, passport, current utilities bill.

Salary and savings history

You need to supply proof of consistent deposits into your bank account.

PAYG (pay as you go) employees

- ☐ Your last two consecutive pay slips, which must include your name and your employer's name and details
- ☐ Year-to-date gross and net incomes
- ☐ Superannuation statements

If you don't have access to these, a combination of a single pay slip, recent tax documents, group certificates or a letter from your employer confirming length of tenure and wages can suffice. Check specifics with your bank so you give yourself enough notice, in an already stressful process, to chase these down.

- ☐ Summaries of your monthly expenses, including rent, bills and existing loan repayments
