Over coffee – one of my two weekly treats – in the foyer of The Age building in 2016, I told my mentor, editor Angus Holland, that I was living on ‘pocket money’, and he emboldened me to write about it. Nobody has had as much of an influence on my journalism as you, Angus; you changed my life.

Thank you to Meredith Curnow and Tom Langshaw from Penguin Random House for working with me, and your warmth, faith and unending patience throughout. I am very lucky to have had you in my corner.

Dr Alex Joiner, I appreciate you sharing the heft of your intellect; I thank my bosses Alice Stolz and Melina Cruikshank for your support; and my right-hand Jessica Dale, for your help and friendship.

Dad, Mum, Sarah and little Harper – I love you more than all the money in the world.
