

Miso eggplant tartine with pickled ginger salsa

Serves 4

2 eggplants
80 ml extra virgin olive oil
5 tbsp red miso
4 slices sourdough or baguette
1 clove garlic
Salt and pepper

Pickled ginger salsa

2 shallots, diced finely
40 g pickled ginger, diced finely
30 g chopped chives

1. Place the eggplants over the flame of a gas burner on a stove and cook, turning frequently, until they begin to char and deflate. Once soft, place eggplants in a bowl, cover with cling wrap and let them sweat. Once cooled, pour the juice into a separate bowl. Cut the eggplants in half and scrape the insides into the bowl without scraping the skin. Add olive oil and miso to the flesh, and mix until a rough dip forms.
2. Toast or grill the bread, then rub the garlic over so it imparts flavour.
3. To make the salsa, mix the shallots, pickled ginger and chives together in a small bowl.
4. To assemble the tartine, spread the eggplant dip over the toasted bread, then sprinkle over the pickled ginger salsa and season with a touch of salt and cracked pepper.
