

Windsor

259 Collins Street
Melbourne

shagmelbourne.com

An iconic destination for fashion lovers who like to sparkle brighter than the pack. Shag is a purveyor of rare and glamorous clothing – and the louder the better. This boutique has all the colour, texture and verve of Twiggy meets Debbie Harry crossed with modern-day lovelies. Accessories always look like oddities here – for example, an oversized safety pin handle on a handbag – and ties, jumpers and scarves are blown out with blinding prints.

Paris 99

4/6 Ormond Road
Elwood

paris99.net

An appointment-only salon in the apartment of fashion designer and collector Yahav Ron. Bookings have to be made to view the pre-loved collection, in the vein of French boutiques. It won't be a surprise here to find labels of the calibre of the Belgian and Japanese masters, including Comme des Garçons and Ann Demeulemeester, complemented by Martin Grant, Maison Margiela and Dolce & Gabbana. Ron purchases the pieces from style mavens the world over, and his collection reflects their high-end tastes, but at a palatable price. Solo and group bookings are available, and everything is tagged at 70 to 90 per cent off the original price. Ron is passionate about recycled fashion, and a one-on-one with him will impart an appreciation for the sculptural quality of a decade-old Comme jacket, or the flounce of a vintage Dior pencil skirt.

Eurotrash

4/217 Chapel Street
Pahran

eurotrash.com.au

Designer handbags are king at this Chapel Street boutique. Chanel bags straight from the pages of high-end glossy magazines; iconic red-soled Christian Louboutin heels; Hermès bags, which usually carry a wait list for brand-new items; Gucci, Versace and Prada – oh my.
